Pièces pré-imprégné fibre de carbone utilisent moins de résine car il est "cuit" sous pression dans un autoclave qui résulte en un produit plus résistant et plus léger que le typique fibre de carbone, car elle élimine l'excès de résine. Le processus d'autoclave élimine les vides, pousse sur l'excès de résine et crée un produit plus dense plus uniforme qui est plus léger, plus fort et plus souple. Le carbone Pré-imprégné est la méthode préférée pour la course, et l'aéronautique. Il est plus cher à construire avec cette méthode, mais il en résulte un produit de qualité supérieure.
